As many of you know, this is the 800th anniversary of the Dominican Order. These weekly bulletin inserts help us to better know the legacy of St. Dominic. God bless, Fr. Mike & Fr. Bob

St. Dominic

The life of St. Dominic (1170-1221) began like most others; notable only to his family and friends. His parents were comfortable, but not especially wealthy. The family was pious enough to have already sent two sons on to study for the priesthood, but they seemed to have lived a pretty ordinary life at Caleruega, in Old Castile.

There were some early hints of greatness, however. Before conceiving him, Dominic's mother, Jane, had a vision of giving birth to a puppy with a flaming torch in its mouth which proceeded to run around setting things on fire. This was interpreted as a sign that her son would set the world ablaze with the Gospel. Similarly, at his baptism, a star of sorts appeared on Dominic's forehead. As a result, both the dog with the torch and the star have become symbols of St. Dominic and the Order he founded.

While he might have done otherwise, Dominic followed in his brothers' footsteps and began to study for the priesthood. While still at school a famine and plague struck and he famously sold his books (the medieval equivalent of selling one's computer and smart phone), and used the money to care for the poor. This generous young man was shortly ordained a priest, and subsequently joined a religious community at Osma. He probably imagined a quiet, simple life. But God, it seems, had other plans.
