3rd Sunday of Easter

Readings:

Acts 5:27-32, 40b-41

Ps 30:2, 4-6, 11-13

Rv 5:11-14

Jn 21:1-19

"Jesus said to him the third time, 'Simon, son of John, do you love me?'" Three times, Simon Peter had denied Jesus. Now, three times, the risen Christ gives Peter the opportunity to announce his love. Although Peter was "distressed" by the Lord's repeated question, ultimately this must have been a healing moment in Peter's life. He finally had the opportunity to assure Jesus that he loved him, thereby making up for his earlier failure and weakness on the night of the Crucifixion.

Jesus' death on the cross sufficed to forgive us of our sins. But his resurrection assures us that there is new life on the other side of our sinfulness. Just as Jesus had the power to conquer death, so too through his grace we have the power to conquer our sins. We can live a resurrected life, we can have a new beginning, just as Peter did that day at the Sea of Tiberias when he pledged his faith anew.

This pledge of faith, it's interesting to note, also came with a kind of commission. Each time that Peter told the Lord he loved him, Jesus responded with a command: "Feed my lambs," "Tend my sheep," and "Feed my sheep." Of course, we know that Jesus had already established Peter as the rock on which he built his church, as the first pope. Now, Jesus was emphasizing the connection between loving him—the Good shepherd—and loving his people, his flock, his church. Peter's love for Christ was meant to be manifested in his love and care for the church, as is the case with every pope. But it's also true for every Christian. We are called not just to relish the gift of forgiveness and the grace of new life in Christ, but to take the next step of loving and serving those around us.

St. Thomas Aquinas (1225-1274)

Thomas Aquinas lived during the peak decades of the thirteenth century. His writings, like Gothic cathedrals, were part of the culture of the High Middle Ages. As a teenager he was sent to the new University of Naples not far distant from his family's home. There he entered the Dominicans who sent him on for study at the prestigious University of Paris where one of his professors, Albert the Great, led him into the knowledge of Aristotle and other newly discovered Greek philosophers and scientists. Convinced that God spoke to us through "two books," the created universe and the Bible, Aquinas sought to bring together in conversation science and the New Testament.

His theology assumes the form of a procession, a journey, an unfolding. It begins with the procession of the three divine persons in God. Next emerges the creation of the universe with its climax in the human person. Drawing this forward is a deeper presence of the Word in Jesus and of the Holy Spirit in all men and women. Theology then looks at the spiritual life of the believer grounded in grace and active in the many virtues. The liturgy's sacraments continue the Incarnation on earth.

Aquinas is a theologian of the universality and ordinariness of grace. At the same time, he is an advocate of the potentiality and value of the each person.
